Dedication

In appreciation of your teaching the true meaning of sportsmanship, your understanding as a teacher and friend, your wonderful sense of humor and tolerance when being teased, your concern for the individual, your fair assessment of each student as a person, and the certain other individual traits you possess, which have made an indelible impression upon the members of the class of 1969, we honor you . . .

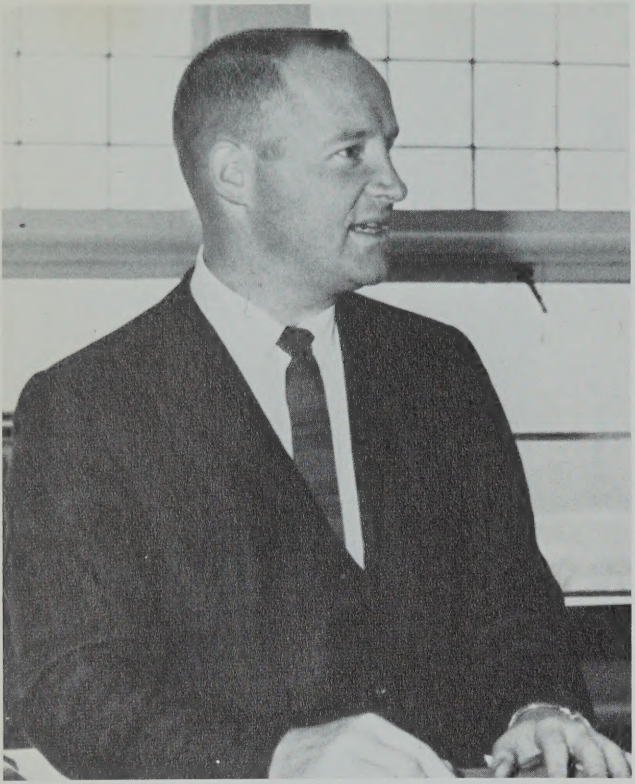
MISS ANN HARRINGTON

Dedication

In appreciation of your subtle sense of humor, your shy smile, your unselfish devotion as a coach, your formula of building men first and teams second, and your fine example as a teacher and a human being, we the members of the graduating class of 1969, dedicate our yearbook to you . . .

MR. HUDSON MATSON

Administration



MR. IRWIN ELKINS

Although the Class of 1969 has experienced only one year under the new administration, we are certain that the tradition of M.M.H.S. has continued to prosper and grow under its watchful eye.

The most outstanding quality shown by Mr. Elkins, Mr. Drake, and Mr. Roach, is their willingness to let the students take an active part in making the rules which govern them. An administration like this can only go forward.

MR. DONALD DRAKE

MR. MARTIN ROACH

Guidance

We will always be grateful to Miss Grogan, Mr. Chadwick, and Mr. Gemme for their dedication in helping us to awaken to challenges and responsibilities, to make decisions, and to understand more about ourselves. They have guided and prepared us for a brighter future.

Commencement

Class Day

Address of Welcome

Parents, Members of the Faculty, Fellow Students, and Friends:

As president of the Senior Class of 1969, I would like to welcome all of you to our Class Day exercises. I would like to extend special greetings to Mr. Irwin Elkins, our new superintendent, and Mr. Donald Drake, our new principal.

Today, June 11, 1969, we step forth from our unforgettable high school years into an ever-changing and trouble-filled world that is in desperate need of leaders. Some of these leaders will emerge from the Class of '69 at Millbury High, thanks to the patience, understanding, and effort of our teachers and parents.

We would like to thank our former class advisor, Mr. John Chadwick, for his unselfish help and guidance, and Mr. Charles Capparelli, for his assistance as advisor during the latter part of our senior year.

To each member of the Class of '69, I wish the best of luck in everything he undertakes after graduation. And my classmates and I sincerely hope that each of you in the audience will enjoy these Class Day exercises.

Thank you

Sandra Taraskiewicz—President, Class of '69

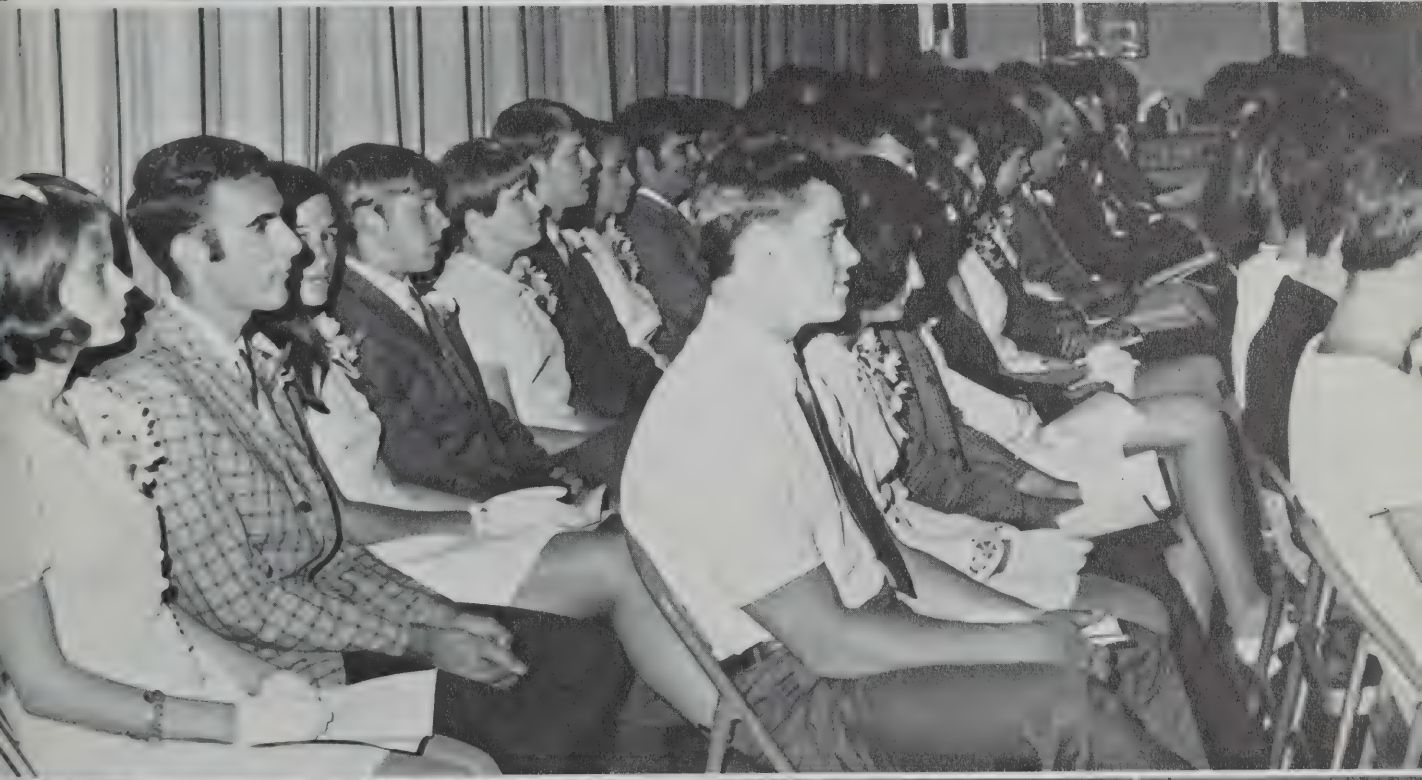
WE HAVE FINISHED ONLY TO BEGIN



Class History

On a sunny September morning in 1965, one hundred seventy anxious and sometimes timid boys and girls entered the halls of Millbury Memorial High. On this day we elected Kenneth Bekier as president of our Freshman Class along with John Hamilton, vice-president; Diane Boutilier, secretary; Robert Picard, treasurer; and Linda Gibbons, class captain. Chosen to represent us on the Student Council were Kenneth Bekier, Rodney Finne, and Christine Graber.

Before we knew it, the football season had opened and attracted many of the athletic freshman boys. Among them were Dean Anderson, Kenneth Bekier, Stephen Bowker, Stephen Frazier, John Hamilton, Ronald Laconto, Richard Colarusso, Thomas Eramo, Peter Lacouture, Roger Padeni, and Albert Pelletier, along with Robert Picard, Donald Sharron, Kevin McArdle, Michael Pescheta, Jeffrey Stockwell, William Stockwell, and Charles Taft. Spurred by Linda Shepard, our only freshman cheerleader, our boys proved themselves to be very capable on the athletic field.

After successful conclusion to the fall sports schedule, several of our active boys joined the basketball team, while the girls' basketball team was supported by Diane Boutilier, Sandra Taraskiewwicz, Kathleen Brady, Janet Magnuson, Beth Lacouture, Adrienne Methot, and Linda Gibbons.

After having recovered from our first experience with mid-years, we answered the call to spring sports. Stephen Bowker, Robert Picard, Gerald Aubin, Peter Lacouture, Donald Sharron, Kevin McArdle, John Hamilton, and Philip Witkowski represented the Freshman Class on the baseball diamond while Diane Boutilier, Kathleen Brady, Sandra Taraskiewicz, Linda Gibbons, Brenda Nicoletti, Regina May, and Darlene Lindblad energetically exercised their talents on the girls' softball team.

The track team was well supported by the freshmen and all exhibited their running and jumping abilities.

With the termination of the track and baseball seasons, the school year also came to an end.

Laden with experience in discipline and study, we entered our sophomore year. Class elections were held promptly and the following officers were chosen; Diane Boutilier, President; Kenneth Bekier, vice-president; Linda Shepard, secretary; Rose Vigliatura, treasurer; and Kathleen Brady, class captain. The student council was composed of sopohomores Diane Boutilier, Linda Shepard, Kevin McArdle, and Kenneth Bekier.

The Glee Club, Reflector Staff, French Club, and Biology Club also drew the attention of many enthusiastic sophomores.

When the fall sports season arrived Charles Taft, Ernest Bardier, Gerald Aubin, Peter Lacouture, Kenneth Bekier, John Hamilton, Phil Witkowski and Thomas Eramo joined with Steven Bowker, Gordon Young, Dean Anderson, Kevin McArdle, Donald Sharron, Daniel Hoyt, Michael Pescheta, and Jeffrey Stockwell to make themselves known on the football field.

Once again mid-years approached, and once again we all survived the ordeal of cramming.

Spring arrived and everyone's thoughts turned to baseball, softball, and track. Peter Lacouture, Stephen Bowker, Donald Sharron, Kevin McArdle, Mike Pescheta, John Hamilton, and Phil Witkowski made the baseball team, while Linda Gibbons, Sandra Taraskiewicz, Pauline Army, Regina May, Diane Boutilier, Cheryl Brady, and Kathleen Brady continued to bring recognition to the girls' softball team.

Again summer was upon us and our sophomore year came to a close.

We returned to school the following September with the title of upperclassmen and our class rings to prove it.

The President of our Junior Class was Debra Collette; vice-president, Kevin McArdle; Secretary, Anne Robitaille; treasurer, Sandy Taraskiewicz; and class captain, Phil Witkowski. Junior representatives to the Student Council included Debra Collette, Christine Graber, Kevin McArdle, Kathleen Brady and Christine McNamara.

The football and field hockey teams again appealed to many in our class who continued to play their best while cheered on by Linda Shepard, Anne Robitaille, and Estelle Rock, our cheerleaders.

At the annual induction ceremonies for the National Honor Society, the Junior Class proved itself to be competent scholastically as well as athletically. Chosen to be the recipients of this high honor were Janice Lindstrom, Ellen Church, Kathleen Brady, Beth Lacouture, Constance Krula, Janet Magnuson, Anne Robitaille, Wayne Marquis, Christine Graber, Robert Weidman, Charbra Adams, Lynda Lange, Marie Koehler, and Christine McNamara.

Our congratulations were also extended to Janice Lindstrom, Ellen Church, Constance Krula, and George Gosselin, who were named Horace Mann Students for having maintained a scholastic average of 90 or better for two consecutive years.

The climax to our school year, our Junior Prom, was held on June 7, 1968 at Nick's Colonial Grille. The theme was "Summer Carousel," and Linda Beauchamp was crowned queen. Members of her court were Linda Shepard, Diane Boutilier, Christine Graber, Joyce Caika, and Beth Lacouture.

Summer vacation came once again and it was gladly welcomed by everyone.

After a long and restful summer, the class of "69" returned to Millbury High as full-fledged Seniors, the leaders of our school. We soon became aware, however, that this title carried with it much work and many responsibilities.

As usual, class elections were held, and Sandra Taraskiewicz was elected as president. Serving as vice-president was Brenda Nicoletti; as secretary, Anne Robitaille; as treasurer, Lynn Murphy; and as class captain Linda Shepard. The student council chose Kevin McArdle as its president, along with Kathleen Brady as secretary. Other members of the Council included Christine Graber, Sandra Taraskiewicz, Debra Collette, and Christine McNamara.

Next on the agenda after election, came the formulation of the Aftermath Staff. Kathleen Brady was chosen to be Editor-in-Chief, with Peter Lacouture and Lynn Murphy serving as Assistant Editors. Beth Lacouture and Sheila Girourd were selected by the faculty to serve as Associate Editors.

The football team with Captains Kevin McArdle and John Hamilton compiled a seven win, one loss record for the season and captured the Class "C" Title and a tie for the Southern Worcester County League Championship.

Kathleen Brady was chosen as our D.A.R. good citizen, and Kevin McArdle was our representative for Student Government Day in Boston.

We now began to prepare with enthusiasm for our Senior Prom, which was co-chairmaned by Maureen McSheehy and Sandra Taraskiewicz. White Cliffs was selected to be the site of our last prom, while the theme was chosen to be "Norwegian Wood." Diane Boutilier reigned as queen with Estelle Rock, Linda Beauchamp, Nancy Hayward, Christine Graber, Sonja Haponenko, and Maureen McSheehy comprising her court.

Class Day and graduation rapidly approached, and Mr. Drake announced the following as Senior Honor Students: Janice Lindstrom, Ellen Church, George Gosselin, Wayne Marquis, Christine McNamara, Joyce Holm, Susan White, Sandra Kruger, Genevieve St. Germain, Anne Robitaille, Sheila Girourd, Robert Weidman, Christine Graber, Kathleen Brady, Janet Magnuson, Beth Lacouture, Constance Krula, Estelle Rock, Sheila McLaughlin, and Martha Sisco.

The Graduation speakers were to be Janice Lindstrom, Ellen Church, Constance Krula, and George Gosselin.

Now it was time to prepare for the all important graduation activities. Those chosen as Class Day Speakers were Sandy Taraskiewicz, Address of Welcome, and Last Will and Testament; Diane Boutilier, Class Statistics; Donna Direnzo and John Hamilton, Class Gifts; Danny Hoyt, Omissions and Corrections; Sonja Hapenenko, Class Prophecy; and Christine McNamara, Class History.

Climaxing our school days at Millbury High upon graduation on June 12 we will not only sadly witness the end of our school years but also eagerly anticipate the promises of the future.

Class Prophecy

Well, here I am in a Pan-American jet heading for Florida. I was picked the tallest girl in the state after using a special hormone cream invented by the world famous doctor of height—John Vitkawskas. I was rewarded with a ten-day tour to Florida-Washington-back to Millbury's own Windle Airport. I knew the trip was going to be exciting in itself. Besides, who knows, maybe I'd meet some of my former classmates from the graduating class of 1969.

Right on the plane I met five from my class. Sandy Fiellman, Sue Perron, and Donna Caplette were stewardesses. Paul Chaffee was the pilot, and Tom Eramo acted as co-pilot. While talking to the girls, I found out that quite a few of my classmates were now living in Miami, Florida. They had heard about my good fortune, and some of them were planning to meet me at the airport. As the plane landed I discovered that the girls were right. Standing at the gate were Chris Ballard, Linda and Lorna Arnold, Cathy Banach, Richard Lizotte, Ronnie Laconto, and Bob Lachapelle. In the crowd was a handsome, distinguished-looking man. Getting closer, I recognized him as being Danny Donavan. According to everyone there, Dan had become another Hugh Heffner. He even owned his own playboy bunny club. He was to be my escort for some of the social affairs that I would attend during my 5-day stay in Florida.

Dan offered to give me a ride to my hotel. His chauffeur, Dean Anderson, drove me to the plush Ritz-of Florida Hotel owned by Steve Bowker. The two doormen were Jon Bengston, and Wayne Marquis. My bell-hop was John Hamilton. When I got to my room, I found a gigantic basket of yellow roses compliments from a leading florist shop owned and operated by Jeff and Joe Stockwell. At exactly 8:30 by doorbell rang. John Vigliatura, the hotel messenger boy, had a note from Bill Cotter, a member of the popular comedian team of Cotter & Army. (That's Don Army.) Bill said that he was waiting downstairs in the lobby. I just grabbed my purse and rushed to the elevator, which was operated by Roger Anderson. As soon as Bill saw me, he showered me with compliments. He raved about my hairstyle, which was created by Diane Boutilier, and my outfit, which was designed by the well-known Beauchamp-Beaudoin Boutique owners. I couldn't keep from staring at his handsome attire. He mentioned that he had all his clothes made exclusively from Nettlebladt's Shop for the real man.

Bill had a big night planned. For dinner, he had made reservations at the very exclusive Bardier's Bar and Grill. The maitre de was none other than Bob DerHovanessian. He led us to the best table in the restaurant. Sitting at our table waiting to greet us was Ernie Bardier himself. Attending the bar were Mike Pescheta and Gerry Aubin. Ernie told us that Norm Gauthier was bartender in the afternoon.

Ernie had become quite successful. This was evident by the fact that he could afford the popular singing group "The Tragic Memories." This group had songs that were on the top of the charts throughout the country. They consisted of Chuck Corey, Pete Cristo, John Devoe, and Don Holmes. Our . . . um . . . waitress was Marie Koehler. The delightful atmosphere made us lose track of time. It was already 10:00. We thanked Ernie for a delicious dinner. According to Ernie some of the best cooks were on his staff. To my surprise, the head chef was Roger Padeni assisted by Eddie Trombowicz. Bruce Thurber was their salad boy who became famous overnight because of his famous fruit salad dressing.

Next on the agenda was a broadway musical called "Funny Boy," starring the short, dark, but handsome Ron James. Co-starring with him was charming Sharon Paquette, who made her start on Community Auditions. Because Bill knew a great many of the performers, we were able to go backstage and meet them. Some of the stars were Marc Brouillard, Cindy Burke, Janet Magnuson, and Regina May. We also met the members of the music department. They included Peter Lacouture at the organ; Charbra Adams and Maureen McSheey with the flute; Ellen Church and Judy Tarbox with their clarinets; Ronald DeSourdis playing trumpet; and Diane Marcell on tenor saxophone. The technical directors were Stephen Kelly and Lynn Fournier. "Funny Boy" was produced by Linwood Frantum and George Gosselin. Paul Wood was in charge of microphones and sound effects. Donna Direnzo and Steve Turner were the hair consultants. In charge of the women's fashions were Linda Shepard and Anne Robitaille. The men's clothing was designed by Albert Pelletier. My first day in Florida had been so wonderful. I did many things in such a short time. I knew the others would be fun.

The following was a bright and sunny one. The first thing I did was to call room service for breakfast. I recognized the voice of Nancy Thornburg. In the meantime, I received a call from Debbie Ellis. We talked for a while and then made arrangements to go to a fashion show in the afternoon after having lunch with a few friends at 1:30. She told me she would try to get a hold of Chris Graber, Bev Dulmaine, and Linda Hairyes to meet us at the restaurant.

By the time we finished our conversation, room srvice had sent up my breakfast with Russ Anderson. It was only 10:00 and the weather was gorgeous, so I decided to wear my bikini created by Debbie Bush and walked to a local beach. On my way out, I bumped into the chambermaid, Sue Winiarski. She told me that Julie Cammuso and Cheryl Brady were at work doing the same work but on different floors. I thought I would never make it to the beach. I had to ask several people which beach was closest. Among all the people in Miami, I coincidentally bumped into Joe Chase, Debbie Collette, and Darlene Linblat. All of them gave me different directions, so I decided that I better take a taxi, run by Paul Hisoire, back to the hotel and be content to use their swimming pool. The patios were overcrowded and I was happy to find a table with some friends. Kenny Bekier called me over to join him and his friends. To my amazement, I knew them all. They were Kevin McArdle, Bob Picard, Sheila Girouard, Pam Gover, and Nancy Haywood. Watching some of the people at the pool, I thought I recognized a few of them. Yes, I saw Linda Thomas and Claudia Watts diving into the pool. After looking at my watch, I discovered it was 12:45. I had just enough time to get ready and meet Debbie and the girls for lunch.

At the restaurant along with those Debbie had mentioned were Rose Vigliatura and Brenda Nicoletti. Right after lunch we went to a private fashion show sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary. The first model was Kathy Brady, wearing an evening gown created by Debbie Szkutak. Lynda Lange wore a stunning riding outfit with a leather cap and boots which was designed by Roger Riani. One of the last fashions was modeled by Lynn Murphy, which she designed herself. After the show was over, I met some big store owners from all over the country. Among them were the following people: Edward Piasta, Charlie Taft, Gary Weagle, Gordon Young, Carlos Shurick, and Bill Stockhaus.

It was about 5:00 when I got back to the hotel. As soon as I got into my room, the telephone rang. It was Danny Donavan calling to remind me that he would pick me up around 8:30. He was going to bring me to his playboy club for dinner and dancing. The club was all Dan said it was. The bunnies were quite eyecatching, but what really amazed me was the fact that they had boy bunnies also. The music was loud and I was told that there was a casino downstairs. The hatcheck girl was Sandy Taraskiewicz. Sandy called another bunny, who was Martha Sisco, to direct us to our table. While waiting for our dinner, I noticed Diane, Donna, and Doreen Dumas, and also recognized Ann Bouvier to be among the bunnies. Some of the boy bunnies that I recognized were Tim Faron, Bob Henault, Ronnie Louis, Paul Redmond, Curt Rudge, and Phil Witkowski. The boy bunny who served us our dinner was Kenny Rynn.

After our dinner, we went downstairs to the casino. It was really crowded. Some of the wheel spinners were Paul Provencher, Bobby Weidman, Rodney Finne, and Rick Colarusso. From the looks of the place, I would say Dan was making quite a gigantic profit.

My last three days in Florida were spent relaxing at the beach and shopping. The first half of my trip had gone by. Before I realized it, I was on a jet heading for Washington. While traveling, I thought of all the people I had met from the class of 1969.

Waiting at the airport in Washington were Pat Faron and her husband. I had telegraphed them ahead of time to meet me. Because her husband was quite prominent among Washington's society people and professional men, Pat told me they were always going to parties, and she promised that I would be kept busy during my stay.

Pat and I spent a great deal of time the first few days clueing men in on what some of my former classmates were doing now in Washington. David Anyon was now a surgeon at a leading hospital. Joyce Caika, Pauline Army, Paula Cammuso, and Sheila McLaughlin were all married to senators. Pat mentioned that she saw them quite often at parties. Some of the women politicians in Washington were Susan White, Donna Thomas, Genevieve St. Germaine, Chris McNamara, and Mary-Jo Sheehan. Sandy Woodward, Estelle Rock, Pauline Pilet, and Sandy Paille were all heads of various clerical departments in a leading insurance company. The president of the company was ... what? ... Elaine LaBelle, assisted by Wally Klosek. Their typing teacher always told them they would go far!!! The law firm composed of Richard Comeau, Dave Dulmaine, and Harold Cahill had just won a hard case in the Supreme Court. Pat told me the publicity the case had received was so great that she thought the whole country was following it.

I asked her about any student revolts, or demonstrations; and she told me that just last week the police force including Steve Frazier, Danny Hoyt, and Paul Beaudry, broke up a crowd of demonstrators. Among some of the peaceful demonstrators were Judy Gover, Joyce Holm, Sandy Kruger, and Debbie Lemoine. Some of the reporters on hand were Linda Gibbons, Mary Ann Graves, Beth Lacouture, and Karen Maynes. They worked for the "Washington Star," whose editors were Connie Krula, Donnie Sharron, Donna Lavoie, and Joanne LaForte.

That brought another incident to Pat's mind. She said there had been a recent political scandal. It was all about Gary Smith and Richie Taraskiewicz, who were both candidates for governor of Washington. It seems that Gary Smith found out that Richie had supposedly employed a committee consisting of Pat Lachance, Joyce Langone, and headed by Janice Lindstrom, with federal funds. But they really were embezzling the money. The committee was investigated and the whole incident was found to be based on pure, slanderous rumors. Nevertheless, neither won the election.

My stay in Washington went by faster than in Florida. Before I knew it, I was saying good-by once again and heading for Windle Airport. It was amazing when I thought about all the old friends I had met. Would you believe that I met all of my former classmates from the class of 1969???

Prophecy

When I arrived at Windle Airport, my car was waiting. Glad to be almost home, I was dismayed when I became involved in a slight accident on the Millbury freeway. To my delight, however, the first person on the scene was Sonja Haponenko, my former classmate, now a famous accident investigator. She handled the situation speedily and efficiently, and I was soon on my way, delighted to have had the opportunity to renew acquaintances with Sonja.

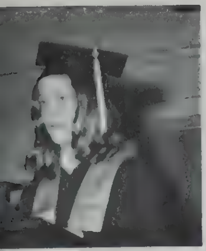
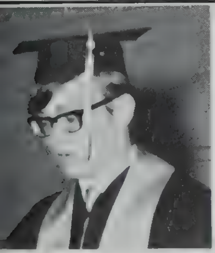
Graduation 1969



The Feminine Revolution

—JANICE LINDSTROM

By developing themselves intellectually, women are freeing themselves from the traditional definition of woman. Intellectual progress is evident in the number of male colleges admitting women. . . . Even our graduating class tonight is an example of feminine abilities, with girls having a higher percentage of representatives in the Senior Honor Group, National Honor Society, and Horace Mann.



Conformity vs. Non-Conformity

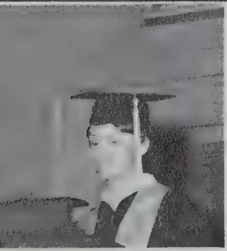
—GEORGE GOSSELIN

In today's world, we are all seeking security in one way or another; and the search for it influences us in the decisions we make. It plays a major role in determining whether you or I will conform to the rules or rebel against them. The conformist is practically assured that he will be accepted by society and, most likely, will find himself a stable dignified line of work. The non-conformist, however, tends to be slightly unstable emotionally. He never knows when public opinion will change drastically against him.

A Commitment to Others

—ELLEN CHURCH

The late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. is an excellent example of a truly committed man. In order to reach his goal of making human rights a reality, he gave his life. His pledge was obviously great and his efforts were clearly evident. People in programs such as Peace Corps, Vista, and Head Start have also made a commitment to others. Although their recognition is far from what Dr. King's was, their contribution can be and often is just as great.



The Challenge of Poverty

—CONSTANCE KRULA

It is difficult to see what we as individuals can do. One of the most important efforts we can make is simply to be aware that this problem exists. It won't go away if we shut our eyes and pretend it isn't there. Acceptance and awareness are the first steps toward progress. Secondly, we must make a change in our attitude toward poverty. True, some people are poor because they don't want to work. But the majority want to help themselves and cannot see how. It is up to us to show them the way.

"When to the session of sweet silent thought,
J summon up remembrance of things past . . .
